

KEEP LITERACY TEST
IN IMMIGRATION BILL

Committeemen Also Provide
Penalty for Steamship Companies Which Bring Undesirables Here.

The Burnett immigration bill, which has been vetoed by two Presidents, probably will come from the House Committee on Immigration this week and another attempt will be made to enact it into law. The bill will retain the literacy test, which caused veto by President Taft and Wilson, but was amended in several important particulars at an executive meeting of the committee yesterday afternoon.

On motion of Congressman Sabath of Illinois, the committee struck from the bill the provision that immigrants from Mexico, Cuba and Canada should be exempt from the limitations of the proposed law. Mr. Sabath is an opponent of the literacy test, but he insisted that the literacy test, if included, shall be made to apply to all immigrants.

Another change made in the bill was by an amendment increasing the head tax on immigrants from $4 to $8. The bill originally carried an increase to $6. The bill also was changed to give the Commissioner of Immigration authority to refuse admission to any immigrant who "for any reason," might become a public charge.

Excludes Asiatic Question.

After a heated discussion the committee decided not to include specific legislation to stop immigration from Asiatic countries. Pacific coast members have been demanding most drastic legislation along this line, but the committee decided to report out no anti-Asiatic bill until the Secretary of State may be consulted regarding the international situation which might arise.

The committee voted favorably on an amendment by Mr. Sabath penalizing steamship companies that bring to this country undesirable immigrants who are refused admission. Under the proposed amendment, the steamship company would be required not only to take back to Europe such immigrants, but would be required to repay to the immigrant his passage money, this payment being in a nature of a fine for the carelessness of the steamship company. The amendment is designed to bring about more strict inspection of immigrants before they are allowed to take passage from foreign countries.

Goldfogle Opposes Measure.

Former Congressman Goldfogle, of New York, appeared before the committee in opposition to the bill. He reiterated his opposition to the literacy test, alleging that it was a hardship upon the worthy immigrant who may have been denied educational advantages, while it would not interfere with the criminal classes possessing educational requirements.

Mr. Goldfogle said he did not expect any great movement of immigrants toward this country after the European war, because of the work of rehabilitation that would require the prospective immigrants to remain in their own countries. He suggested, however, that it was possible there might be a large immigration from Russia and Poland because of race prejudice.

Burglar Escapes Chase
By Policemen and Posse

An exciting man hunt, in which the police reserves of the Second, Sixth, and Eighth precincts and scores of citizens took part, occurred shortly after last midnight when a burglar was detected in the act of rifling a desk in the furniture store of J. J. See & Co., 74 Seventh street northwest. The man made his escape after obtaining about $1 in change and a small quantity of postage stamps, despite the fact that squads of police surrounded the building a short time after his presence was discovered. A blue coat was left behind by the intruder. The police obtained a name and address from a label in the coat, and are working on this clue.

Plant Advertises for Man With But One Leg

CATASAUQUA, Pa., Jan. 22.—The most unique advertisement ever seen in the papers of the Lehigh valley was one this week by the Bryden horseshoe works, of Catasauqua, for one-legged men. Labor is scarce, and the Bryden plant has a machine where cripples can earn just as much stamping out shoes as men who are entirely able-bodied. The advertisement contained a clause that applicants who can earn from $5 a day and upward must present certificates that they are non-drinkers.

Pretty California Girl
Inventing High Explosive

BERKELEY, Cal., Jan. 22.—Though she abhors war, pretty Beatrice Rudawsky, University of California graduate, who looks the artist more than the scientist, is experimenting with a deadly explosive which she says will be more powerful than the most effective explosive now in existence.

"Explosives," she says, "are as valuable to peaceful pursuits as to war. If my experiments are successful, I should like to think of them as a step in science, rather than as a means of killing more men."
